Library Services

❑ Legal Research Guides

The Law Library has developed a series of research guides to assist patrons in locating information on particular topics in the legal field. These guides are aimed at the layperson and cover such topics as bankruptcy, probate, divorce, and taxes.

In addition, the Library staff has compiled several comprehensive bibliographies on topics of interest to the Court and legal community including electronic filing in the courts, technology and the law office, and electronic access to courts.

The self help guides are located on the first floor in aisle 1A, and the bibliographies are available at the Reference Desk. All of these materials are available on our Web page under "Library Publications."

❑ Library Display Case

As you are going about your daily business in the Court make sure to stop by and see the display the Library staff has created.

Located in the glass case in the East Court Building lobby, across from the Copy Center window, the display provides general information about the Library and its services, and illustrates how the Library is incorporating electronic resources into its collections and services.

The case contains sample issues of our publications, books and resource that can be found in the Library.

❑ Law Library Web Page

One of the goals of the Law Library is to provide patrons with access to legal materials located both within the Library's walls and elsewhere. To help accomplish this goal, the Library has created an Internet Web Page to assist both in-house and remote users to access low-cost legal information.

The Web Page for the Law Library is hosted by Maricopa County and is located at: <http://www.maricopa.gov/lawlibrary>

One way the Library provides access to legal resources is through the Legal Links section of our Web Page. This section has recently been restructured to provide users with easier access to materials.

The purpose of the Legal Links page is to provide an organized list of links to Internet sites. In pursuit of increasing the effectiveness of the Legal Links page, all links have been individually reviewed for usefulness and content. The resulting list is an excellent source for locating law related resources on the Internet.

Evaluating the usefulness of the Legal Links page is an ongoing process. Check here frequently for new links that Library staff have found to be to useful sources of legal information. If there are any sites or subject areas you would like to see added to the Legal Links section please stop by the Reference Desk or send an e-mail to services@smtpgw.maricopa.gov

❑ Horizon

The Law Library is in the process of bringing up Horizon, a new online catalog to replace Bibliofile, our current catalog. Horizon is a Unix-based, integrated library management system with graphical interfaces. The new public access catalog (PAC) will allow patrons to see if materials have been checked out, locate books on similar topics more easily, and will be accessible via the Internet to allow users to search the PAC from home.

In June, the server and Horizon software will be installed, and Library staff will complete its review of the database loading and prepare the system to be ready for staff training. The PAC is scheduled to be initially available for use in August.

However there is one area in which we need your help. The catalog needs a name and we are asking users to offer suggestions for ideas. Please offer any suggestion you have for a suitable name for a law library catalog to the Reference or Information Desk staff.

□ CLE Information

Are you interested in attending a conference or seminar? Do you need CLE credits? The Law Library has a collection of local and national seminar brochures to help you find a seminar of interest.

In addition, the Library is adding this new section to En Banc that will provide you with short descriptions of upcoming CLE classes.

The State Bar of Arizona is presenting "Two (count 'em 2) Internet Seminars" on June 20, 1997. The first seminar, "The Who, What, How & Why of the Internet" is for those who need a basic introduction, with an emphasis on how using the Internet can make your law practice more efficient. Don't fret- easy, non-technical terms will be used.

The second seminar entitled "Legal Research Over the Internet" is designed to teach you the skills needed to expand your research (and lower your cost of performing research). Of course, MCLE credits are available for both classes.

On July 16-19, 1997 is the 7th annual "CLE by the Sea" Seminar, located in beautiful San Diego at the Hotel del Coronado. Here's an opportunity to earn your full MCLE requirements for 1996-1997.

With four seminar tracks to choose from, this weekend offers something for trial, family law, probate and criminal law attorneys.

Information and registration rates about both seminars can be obtained through the State Bar, or in the Library photocopy room.

□ Legislative Information

One of the major issues in last November's election was Proposition 102, dealing with juvenile justice reform. Under Proposition 102 juveniles who are 15 years of age or older and who are accused of murder, rape or armed robbery would be prosecuted as adults and opens certain court records associated with these offences.

This proposition was passed by the voters last November by a vote of 62.9% to 37.0%. The Governor signed the Proposition and proclaimed it to be law on December 6th, 1996.

The proposition then went to the legislature, which had the task of incorporating the requirements of the proposition into the statutes. Senate Bill 1446 was drafted to implement the proposition.

SB1446 passed through the legislature and was signed into law by the Governor on April 21, 1997 becoming Session Law 220.

The text of the proposition and information on the election results can be located on the Secretary of State's homepage at <http://www.sosaz.com/> and information about the bill can be located on the Arizona Legislature's homepage:

<http://www.azleg.state.az.us/>

If you would like further information about this topic please stop by the Reference Desk and the staff will be happy to assist you.

□ Training Opportunities

The Law Library offers training for attorneys and their staff members, judges and their staff, and the public. Classes are held in the second floor online services room and cover how to use our electronic resources and the Internet for legal research. For a complete schedule of our classes please check the Web Page at: <http://www.maricopa.gov/lawlibrary/curinfo.htm>

Classes for attorneys and their staff are held on alternate Thursdays beginning on June 26th and classes for Judges and their staff are held on alternating Tuesdays beginning on June 17th.

The Law Library is now offering an electronic research class for the general public. The class is being held on Monday June 23 from 12:15 - 1:15.

The Reference staff offers several COJET's, for Court personnel. Classes are held from 9:00 - 10:30 on Wednesdays. To register for a COJET, or for specific dates, please call the Training Department at x3393.

The Law Library is always looking to provide classes that will be of use to our patrons. If there is a specific type of class you would like to see offered here in the Library, please stop by the Reference Desk and let the staff know of your ideas.

Contact the Reference staff at 506-3681 to register for a class, schedule a one-on-one session, obtain more information, or to inquire about future training opportunities.

Superior Court Update

The Superior Court in Maricopa County is the eighth largest trial court in the county with over 2,300 employees and approximately 100,000 new cases filed annually. Of these cases almost a third are civil filings.

The Civil Department of the Court is often one that is overlooked, but it handles all cases that involve legal disputes among individuals or businesses. Most civil cases involve matters related to a breach of contract, the collection of a debt, personal injury, or property damage.

Judge Roger W. Kaufman is the Presiding Judge of the Civil Department, which currently includes 19 judges. Because the number of civil filings keep increasing, the Superior Court is taking steps to ensure that all parties have speedy access to justice. The Court has implemented several reforms to try and speed up access to the system including ADR and the Zlaket reforms.

By the use of arbitration, settlement conferences, and mediation, the Court has reduced the judicial workload and improved the access to the courts significantly. In addition reforms in the discovery process have sped up the trial process allowing for faster decisions.

If you have any further questions about the Superior Court please ask one of the Reference Librarians or check out the Superior Court Web page at:

<http://www.maricopa.gov/supcrt/homepg2.html>

Electronic Resources

❑ Computer Resources

The Law Library provides patrons with access to over 25 different legal research databases on our ten networked computers.

Some new titles available on the network include the U.N. Treaty Index, the Federal Local Court Rules, and the ALR 4th, 5th, and Federal, which are now available on the network.

The Library also has standalone CD's, such as the ALR 3rd, available for use in the Library. Please ask at the Reference Desk for these CD's.

Access to Westlaw and Lexis is available for those patrons who subscribe to those services.

Due to an increase in the number of patrons using the computers and printing information, we must ask that all patrons please limit printing to twenty-five pages.

Materials can also be downloaded to disks from any computer and imported into any IBM compatible word processor. Patrons may use their own disks or purchase one from the Information Desk for $1.00.

Please ask the Reference staff for assistance if you have any questions.

❑ Database Review

United Nations Master Treaty Index

United States Treaty Index

The UN Master Treaty Index is cumulative, and covers international treaties and agreements published by the United Nations. At this time, coverage begins with volume 751 of UNTS (United Nations Treaty Series). Future releases of the CD will continue to add retrospective coverage, as well as information on current treaties.

Each reference lists the treaty number, as well as a UNTS cite. The Law Library has the UNTS, which provides the full text of indexed treaties, available in microfiche format beginning with volume one.

Hein's U.S. Treaty Index covers international treaties and agreements entered into by the United States since 1776. This index greatly improves access to UST (United States Treaties and other International Agreements).

UST is a full text source which began publication in 1950. The Law Library has UST available in print beginning with volume one (1950), and in microfiche beginning in 1983.

Although these two indexes are published by Hein, not West Publishing, they use the same Premise search software. If the user has searched other Premise CD's such as Arizona Reports, a new set of search techniques will not have to be mastered in order to effectively use the treaty indexes.

If you would like more information on how to use this database, or any of our computer programs, please ask the Reference staff for assistance.

❑ Internet Site Reviews

Arizona Appellate Court Decisions <http://www.state.az.us/co/cindex.htm>

This site provides access to recent opinions by the Division One and Division Two Court of Appeals in Arizona. The Supreme Court opinions are not available on the Internet at this time.

The opinions on this site are available within a day or so of being issued by the Court. These sites are not comprehensive, nor do the opinions date back more than a few months, but it is a good place for locating recent Court of Appeals decisions.

LegalEthics.Com <http://www.legalethics.com/>

This site was developed by Internet Legal Services to help attorneys locate information and keep current on ethical issues in the legal field.

This site provides readers with access to articles and research guides on areas of concern, links to other sites that deal with ethical issues and a comprehensive set of links to state and federal legal ethics resources.

Information provided for each state includes State Bar contact information, how to file a complaint, and if available, links to the full text of the ethics opinions.

Currently located on this site is a summary of the recent Arizona Ethics Opinion 97-04 on the use of the Internet by law firms.

Kids in the Law: An A to Z Guide for Parents
<http://www.calbar.org/2pub/3kids/3kid.sndx.htm>

This guide to juvenile law was developed as a community service by the State Bar of California to assist parents in locating information on the legal rights of children.

The guide covers topics such as emancipation, the age of majority, gangs, alcohol, and truancy. There is also a comprehensive glossary of legal terms.

Although this guide was written with California law in mind, there is still a good bit of relevant information contained in this easy to understand guide.

Reference Manual on Scientific Evidence

http://www.fjc.gov/EVIDENCE/science/sc\_ev\_sec.html

This site contains the full text of the 1994 Federal Judicial Center's Manual on Scientific Evidence. The manual is designed to provide courts and other legal professionals with information on how to compile, submit, and evaluate scientific evidence.

Topics covered include forensic DNA, statistics, regression, and toxicology. Users can download specific sections of the work or locate information on how to order the complete publication from the Government Printing Office.

Comments to Judicial Conference re Citation Reform

<http://www.hyperlaw.com/jconf.htm>

This site contains comments collected by the American Association of Legal Publishers on the ABA proposal for a new citation format.

Materials accessible on this site include comments from federal judges and judicial staff, articles about the proposed citation reform, and comments from legal publishers and other interested parties.

The State Bar of Arizona has petitioned the Arizona Supreme Court to adopt a uniform citation system for Arizona cases through the creation of Supreme Court Rule 112. If you would like further information on this petition please contact the State Bar at 252-4804.

Library Staff

□ Featured Employees

This month the Library would like to focus on our Library Aides. These are the people that you often see out on the floor keeping the Library in order.

Bruce Naegli probably has the most familiar face in the Law Library. He has been here since 1977 when the Court had only 32 judges. Bruce is a Law Library Aide responsible for shelving books and updating the looseleaf services.

Bruce came to Phoenix in 1953 from Wisconsin. He graduated from North High School then went on to Stanford on a National Merit Scholarship. He obtained his Masters in Library Science from the University of Chicago in 1977.

Bruce's most notable feat was winning a total of $82,200.00 on two separate Jeopardy appearances. Bruce admits to having only one hobby - reading, mainly history.

Shushana Nunley is our newest staff member. He is working part-time as a Law Library Aide.

Born in Fairbanks, Alaska, Shushana came to Arizona in 1988 after living in Oklahoma and Illinois. He recently graduated from Paradise Valley Community College with a degree in General Studies.

Shannon, his nickname, is considering a career in fire science and also has ambitions of earning a pilot's license. In his spare time he enjoys sand volleyball, mountain biking, hiking, camping, and fishing.

□ Did You Know?

Find out how much you actually know about our judges and Court history. Answers are on the following page .

1) While in the Yuma County Attorney's Office, which judge conducted 23 jury trials in just 11 months?

2) Which judge was named National

American Business Woman of the Year in 1980 and was the Phoenix Woman of the Year in 1979?

3) Which former Superior Court judge, while a Supreme Court Justice, was selected "Boss of the Year" by the Maricopa County Legal Secretaries Association?

4) Which judge has the distinction of being the first person in the state's history to have served two counties as superior court judge?

5) Which judge said his blindness was "incompetent", "irrelevant" and "immaterial" to his ability to serve as a judge?

New Materials in the Library

□ Book Reviews

Dusky, Lorraine, Still Unequal: The Shameful Truth about Women and Justice in America. Crown Publishers, 1996.

It's "theme-time" for this month's review. This month I'd like to focus on two new books about women and the law/legal profession. Now before you turn away, gentlemen, just give me a chance. I make no promises, but you just might find these books at least semi-interesting.

The first book is about what one author perceives as the unequalness of women in the legal field; in the law schools, in the courts and in the bar. Ms. Dusky takes a straight-forward look at how women are treated in this country within the legal context. She pulls no punches in this book.

In the first chapter she focuses on the legal education. How different is law school from a woman's perspective than from a man's? Quite different actually, from Ms. Dusky's point of view. And to be quite frank, from mine as well. Calling the legal education field a "morally bankrupt system", Ms. Dusky points fingers, specifically, at Harvard and, generally, at those at the top of the educational system.

Next, Ms. Dusky turns her attention to the bar. She doesn't spare the rod with this group either. Beginning with a brief history of women in the legal field, Ms. Dusky covers all the bases - from why women choose the fields of practice that they do to the private law firms (the "new" sweatshops) to women and their families. Now, don't get me wrong, she also points out that men are quite dissatisfied with their law firm lives as well. But, she notes, that women and minorities progress in the legal profession has been extraordinarily slow - "glacially" so.

Finally, Ms. Dusky looks to women in the courts. Not just from how women are treated as lawyers by lawyers and judges in the courtroom, but also how women in general are treated in the courts; when fighting a divorce, custody, domestic violence or when bringing rape charges. Ms. Dusky poignantly reviews the sad truths of life - women are, for the most part, not treated as equally as men in this life. The author uses true-life accounts throughout the book to support her views. It's a powerful book, well past-due for this age.

This book should be ready to read soon (remember I said it was new. We just got this book last week.). It should be on the new bookshelf on the Plaza Level shortly.

Berry, Dawn Bradley. The 50 Most Influential Women in American Law. Lowell House, 1996.

OK, are you still with me, folks? I have one more book to share with you. It's a little lighter than the "heavy stuff" we were talking about earlier, but in no way less important.

This book highlights the author's picks for the 50 most influential women in the legal field. In most cases, I tend to agree with her. (I'll be honest, I haven't read them all, just the majority.)

Starting in the 1600's with Margaret Brent (bet you can't guess what she did?) to the present day women (i.e. Sandra Day O'Connor, Janet Reno, Marcia Clark). Ms. Berry recounts all the wonderfully colorful stories that surround the lives of these fascinating women.

In this case, I must let the book speak for itself. You should be able to find it shortly on the new book shelf on the Plaza Level at KF 353 .B47 1996. Yes, it's another very new book, but this one is just about ready to go. See you next time.

□ Article Reviews

Ray, Laura Krugman. "Judicial Fiction: Images of Supreme Court Justices in the Novel, Drama, and Film." 39 Arizona Law Review 151 (Spring 1997).

This article takes a look at how the Justices of the Supreme Court have been portrayed in fiction over the years.

Ray, an Associate Professor of Law at Widner University, looks at how the attitudes of the American public towards the judiciary are reflected in the portrayal of the justices on stage and screen.

Ray begins by analyzing the different ways in which the justices have been shown from villain to visionary to avenger in books and on stage. Each different portrayal of the justices is linked to specific events and court cases of the period. For example in The Vicar of Christ the fictional Justice Bradley Walker is closely modeled after Justice Felix Frankfurter in some of his actions.

After covering the appearance of the justices in print fiction Ray moves on to current popular entertainment by reviewing such films as the First Monday in October and the Pelican Brief.

This article is a well researched, interesting analysis of the public's opinion of the Supreme Court justices as reflected in the popular culture of the time.

"Developments in the Law: The Civil Jury." 110 Harvard Law Review 1408 (May 1997).

The Harvard Law Review has two of the more prestigious legal writing vehicles in the law review world, the Foreword to the annual review of the U.S. Supreme Court term, and Developments in the Law, the periodic lengthy (128 pages on "what, if anything, is wrong with the civil jury") treatments of specific areas of the law. This Development covers the civil jury system and its strengths and weaknesses, in light of modern criticisms, in typically thorough fashion. The political and constitutional values the civil jury was intended to serve, the democratic trends in jury selection and composition, six vs. twelve person juries, criticisms of juror efficiency and competence particularly in complex cases and trends toward empowering and educating the jury, and the issue of punitive damages - all are discussed and analyzed in this article. The authors cite a wealth of resources, including the writings of Judge B. Michael Dann and Court of Appeals (and former Superior Court) Judge Noel Fidel, and the report of the Arizona Supreme Court's Committee on More Effective Use of Juries.

□ Recent Court Decisions

HyperLaw v. West Publishing*
United States District Court,
Southern District of New York
(94 Civ. 0589)
<http://www.nylj.com/links/hyperlaw.html>

This decision handed down by District Judge John S. Martin, Jr. states that West Publishing does not own the exclusive copyright on the decisions published in its reporters.

Hyperlaw intended to scan cases from West's reporters, minus West's headnotes and key numbers, directly into its databases. West contended that adding parallel citations, making stylistic and typographical changes to the text, adding litigating attorneys' names, and selecting, ordering and indexing opinions, represented sufficient creative effort to warrant copyright protection of its reporters as compilations. The court disagreed.

The court held that the reporters are correctly analyzed as derivative works and judged by copyright standards applying to compilations, and West's changes to the opinions, viewed separately or collectively, are trivial and insufficient creative effort to warrant copyright protection.

This decision allows HyperLaw to scan in decisions previously published in West reporters, minus the headnotes and key numbers, and republish the opinions.

Amendments to the Federal Rules of Evidence

On April 11, 1997, the U.S. Supreme Court transmitted to Congress several amendments to the Rules of Evidence. These changes will become effective December 1, 1997, absent Congressional action. Among the changes: Rule 103(e) (Rulings on evidence; effect of pretrial ruling) has been added to clarify that a pretrial objection to or proffer of evidence must be timely renewed at trial; Rule 407 (Subsequent remedial measures) has been amended to provide that evidence of subsequent measures is not admissible to prove defects in products or product designs or the need for warnings or instructions, adopting the view of the majority of the federal circuits that have interpreted this rule in product liability cases; and Rule 804(b)(6) has been amended to provide that a party forfeits the right to object to admission of a statement on hearsay grounds if the party's own wrongdoing has caused the unavailability of the declarant, adopting the view of all federal circuits that have decided the issue. The text of the rule changes, along with the Judicial Conference committee notes, can be found at 163 Federal Rules Decisions 153 and 61 Criminal Law Reporter 2048.
